WINEMAKING PHILOSOPHY

The grapes come from vineyards in the municipality of Barolo, at altitudes between 280 and 380 metres above sea level. The soils are of marine sedimentary origin, dating back to the "Piedmont Tertiary Basin", and are characterised by the presence of sedimentary calcareous-clay marl, alternating layers of marl and sand or sandstone, with a prevalence of Sant'Agata Marl (silty grey clay-based sedimentary rock, which can sometimes be bluish and contains varying quantities of limestone). This terroir produces wines which become elegant, aromatic and balanced within 3-4 years. Harvesting is followed by alcoholic fermentation, with maceration on skins for about 20 days. Malo-lactic fermentation takes place in steel. The wine then ages in oak barrels up to 24 months.

TASTING NOTES

Colour: red, tending towards garnet.

Bouquet: intense and complex, with notes of violet, vanilla, tobacco and goudron.
